CHICAGO, April 21.—[By the Associated Press.] The Times' special from Purcell, telling of the last day in the Indian Territory prior to the final invasion of Oklahoms, says: Final preparations were made today for the exodus which begins tomorrow. Wagons were overhauled, supplies purchased and gans and tools given careful inspection. The day was lovely, but there was no suggestion of Sunday in the street scenes. From a hill overlooking the beautiful valley on the Canadian River a softoned bell called those religiously inclined to worship in the Catholic mission of St. Augustine. Along the entire North line of the promage and the latest advices above that the conditions to night are even more exciting than in the south. It is estimated that on the north side of Oklahoma tonight over $30,000 people are encamped in darkness waiting for tomorrow's permission to "Go up and possess the land."

citement is over, as a precautionary measure against bloodshed.
Dispatches to the Times tonight report no change in the situation as to Oklahoma affairs. Excitement is intense, but no trouble has occurred. The streams are now falling, and indications point to fine weather for tomorrow. The Emporia colony, 500 strong, left this afternoon for the promised land, under command of Capt. George George.

The report that the settlers are to be disarmed is only a rumor telegraphed from Arkansas City, and has not yet been confirmed.

MOVING SOUTHWARD.

Boomers Hurrying Down to the Oklahoma Line.

Sr. Louis, April 21.—[By the Associated Press.] The Republic's Wichita, Kan, special says: The first train south on the Santa Fé, consisting of 15 coaches, arrived today, and there was not standing room in the coaches. Propie filled the anneas here. today, and there was not standing room in the coaches. People filled the spaces be-tween the cars and crowded the steps. One enterprising boomer rode in on the cow-catcher. There were about 1400 passengers catcher. There were about 1400 passengers on the train. The arrivals today number at least 5000. Of this number about one-third went south to reach the line of Oklahoma in order to be ready for the word "Go." Others left for Purcell. Railroad officials are greatly worried over the prospects of moving so many people tomorrow. The sidewalks are filled with flat cars and cattle cars, and a gravel train is also in the collection, none of which will be below the demand. Everything on wheels will be utilized, if necessary. Thieves are busy at work on the trains, and many a poor boomer has been fleeced of his all. The Crescent Townsite Company, with most of its members from Iowa, had a representative at work on each train this morning in the interest of its scheme. About 2000 boomers listened this morning to a sermon delivered by a preacher from Kansas. Tonight the people are prepared to enter the promised land along the line.

LIVELY STREET AFFRAY.

John Murphy, a member of an improvement company, met John Herton, a member of the league, at 2 o'clock this morning and a quarrel followed. It was stopped by a party of friends of each, but revolvers and Winchesters were called into requisition, and firing was kept up in the main streets of Purcell until daylight. The contending parties being under cover, the firing did not result as seriously as it was feared it might. Three of the townsite men were injured. Rival Speculators Preparing for Rival Speculators Preparing for Deeds of Violence.

Kansas Citty, April 21.—(By the Associated Press.) The Journal special from Guthrie says: Despite the orders relating to the tewnsite association, there are already outeroppings of bad blood among those speculators who have been dreaming of wealth to be found in cities founded by them. In Purcell rival companies for the them. In Purcell rival companies for the same site across the river, known by one as Lexington and by the other as East Purcell, yesterday spread broadcast their bills.

Last night they issued incendiary dodgers headed "Defend your rights with rifles, if necessary." It was not long until a little bill addressed to members of the Okiahoma League was posted up warning members "by order of the league" to prepare to hold claims and townsites selected and staked out by them. This morning there were signs of preparation, and more firearms were to be seen than any day heretofore.

Two troops of cavairy were ordered to Purcell. They arrived about noon, and will probably prevent any actual outbreak. The streets and hillsides of that town are covered with men, four-fifth of whom are speculators determined to enrich themselves within the next two days.

It is possible that the presence of troops will overcome those inclined to violence, but this is now hardly expected. There is loud complaint that many of the Deputy Marshals, now in the territory, are only using their position for the benefit of townsite companies or themselves, and it is thought that after noon tomorrow there will be a large defection is their ranks. The settlers seem to think that the deputies will resign and take up claims, and having been over the ground, will have the advantage of knowing the best location.

SPRINGFIELD (III.), April 21.—[By the Associated Press.] William M. Springer is gratified rather than embarrassed at the excess of immigration into the Oklahoma country, and does not share the apprehensions so generally indulged in regarding probable lawlessness and bloodshed over disputed iawiessness and bloodshed over disputed lands.

"What effect will this movement, in your opinion, have on the Southwest in general," was asked.

"I have always contended," replied Springer, "that the settlement of Oklahoma would be a matter of great public interest and that a great population would set in soon after fawful entry could be made; and from what have a heart public interest and that a great population would set in most sanguine expectations are more than realized. There are twice as many persons going in at the beginning as I had anticipated, and the interest manifested is more universal than I had ever supposed it would be. The opening of Oklahoma is today the most absorbing topic before the American people, and it has become a great national topic. Its importance is now seriously realized. This is the beginning of a movement of the population of the Southwest which will continue for years to come. COPENHAGEN, April 21.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] A telegram from Lisbon announces the safety of the crew and passengers of the steamer Dannemark. The good tidings reached Lisbon from the

It is stated that every one who was on the Dannemark is safe, and only the engineer was injured. Some of the passengers arrived at Lisbon today. A number are on their way to New York, and the remainder are still at the Azores.

RESCUED FROM THE SINKING SHIP.

LISBON, April 21.—Forty-two of the crew of the Dannemark have arrived here. Raben, the first officer, who is among them, reports that April 4th the Dannemark's shaft was broken. On the next day the disabled steamer met the steamship Missouri, from London March 28th for Philadelphia and Baltimore. The Missouri towed the Dannemark until the 6th, when the latter seemed to be about to sink. At first the Missouri was only able to take aboard 20 of the Dannemark's passengers, but after having jettisoned a portion of her cargo, she found accommo-dation for all the crew and passengers of

The Captain and three engineers proceeded to London on board a steamer from Demerara. Forty-two sailors and all of the passengers left at the Azores by the Missouri came to Lisbon on the steamship Acar.

HOW THE ACCIDENT OCCURRED.

It is now learned that the death of engineer was due to the bursting of the engine pipe. The engineer was killed on the spot and the ship was badly damaged. In consequence of this damage, together with the breaking of the shaft, the vessel was helpless in the heavy seas that prevailed.

First Serious Disturbance Since the Great Tie-up Began.
MINNEAFOLIS (Minn.), April 21.—[By and Washington avenues on the Riverside line, which runs through a portion of the city largely populated by workingmen, stones and bottles were thrown, and soon a crowd of 500 people gathered and the two cars were thrown over and badly wrecked. The drivers were stoned. The police were summoned, and they two were stoned. Some persons received severe burts, but were hustled out of the way by friends. Police were called from all other lines of duty, and the mob was finally dispersed.

Owing to the withdrawal of all officers from other lines all street cars in the city

Strikers and their sympathizers are tonight engaged in tearing up tracks on nearly all the lines in the outlying districts. APPROPRIATE TRIBUTE TO THE RISEN LORD.

Wealth of Floral Decorations in the Churches of Los Angeles-Services Commemorative of the Resurrection-Catholic and Protestant in Like Decotion.

Easter services were observed in the city churches yesterday with more elaborate preparations than for several years past. There was not a church in the city that did not make some pre-tense of special decorations, and in many of them the splendor of the adornments was something long to be remembered. The music in the prin-cipal churches was very fine. The dif-ferent choirs engaged had been at work for several weeks on famous anthems and sacred music by the mas ters. The songs of praise and rejoic-ing which marked the day were a ing which marked the day were a beautiful offering to the Risen Christ. Nowhere could the floral tributes be more magnificent and varied than in Los Angeles. The gardens of the city poured a fragrant treasure into the churches. The attendance was very large, and at some of the services, people were turned away, unable to secure even standing room. even standing room.

Knights Templar Services The Cour de Lion Commandery No. 9, Knights Templar, in uniform, resplendent with gold regalia, held Easter praise and Templar service yester-day in the Los Angeles Theater. The day in the Los Angeles Theater. The stage was appropriately decorated for this occasion, and the audience was the largest ever had in the house, almost 1500 people being present. Promptly at 3 o'clock the commandery filed into the theater, coming direct from Masonic Hall. They marched to the stage and seated themselves behind the footlights, in rull view of the audience. The officers for the services were Sir Franklin Jordan, Commander; Rev. W. A. Knighten of Grace M.E. Church, Acting Prelate; and Sir A. G. Bartlett, Musical Director. The ladies and gentlemen of the choir were Mrs. and gentlemen of the choir were Mrs. Mamie Perry-Davis, Miss F. Lockhart, Mr. Lotz and Mr. Austin. The order of services was as follows:

nas no fatth has no intelligence. There is such a thing as too much faith that which rests upon superstition. There is such a thing as too much reason that leads to rationalism. In religion reason and faith are both essential, the same evidence that causes learning and brings in the history and acquired knowledge of the past can be used in the Christian faith. There are only two evidences of Alexander and his life; one city and one writer. There is only one proof of the life of Socrates and that is one author. We teach our children to accept these evidences of their lives, while six writers speak of the life and work and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Eleven men associated with Christ three years, and stood around His cross and met Him and conversed with Him and ate with Him, and after His resurrection He was seen of 500 at one time, then ascended to heaven and His sepulcher empty, attracted the attention of the Jew, the Christian and the Mohammedan for the first 1000 years. This was the good faith and this the good fight that spread the civilization of Christianity and gave us the civilization of today. Constantine had his vision of the cross in the heavens surrounded with the words: "By this sign conquer," in letters of blazing light, and from this caught the inspiration that changed the Roman empire from heathenism to Christianity. The idea of the immortality of the soul is the key of the Christian system. If He lives we shall live. This life is the beginning of eternity. This is the cheer that comes to us from Easter. Angels and eternity are before us."

After this interesting sermon followed the benediction.

At St. Paul's.

At St. Paul's Episcopal Church, on Olive street, between Fifth and Sixth, the seating capacity of the auditorium was taxed to its uttermost long before the hour for morning service. Many turned away after vainly endeavoging to obtain a glimpse of the elaborate floral decorations. At the back of the chancel an immense floral piece nearly filled the space between the walls. It was an almost solid mass of white roses upon a background of evergreen. In the chancel was placed a large star of white roses, which formed a beautiful representation of the star of old, the story of which has thrilled so many hearts in centuries that have passed. There was also an exquisite gross resting upon, and seeming to rise from, a mass of calla lilies. The altar and pulpit were daintily adorned with trailing vines and roses. Upon each side of the chancel were graceful paims and calla lilies. Along the sides of the auditorium the deep window ledges were covered with handsome floral pleces. The church presented the appearance of a lovely bower. The beautiful Easter services of the Episco-St. Paul's.

The First Baptist Church, at the corner of Fort and Sixth streets, was very handsomely decorated. Along the railing, in front of the choir, a thick bank of calla lilies was artistically arranged. To the left of the pulpit platform a large harp of white roses and cedar was rested against a pillar, and to the right was an exquisite lyre of pink geraniums. There was a star of daisies on the altar, and a dove beneath. The church was adorned profusely with calla lilies and palms. The music for the services had been specially prepared by a male quartette composed of Messrs. Lowe, Williams, Nay and Sigler, and was beautiful in selection and execution. The services were conducted by Rev. J. H. Reider and Prof. Bristol of the Los Angeles University. University.

At one side of the altar was a beautiful anchor of white flowers, and at the other a heart of white roses cleft with an arrow tipped with geraniums. There was an exquisite arrangement of tall, graceful palms at the corners of the auditorium nearest the pulpit. There is something palms at the corners of the auditorium nearest the pulpit. There is something about the grace of the nodding palm leaves which seems to be peculiarly appropriate for church decorations, and in this church they were more profuse and more beautifully arranged than in any of the Easter decorations. The pulpit was almost embowered in roses and calla lilles, and there were exquisite hanging baskets of assorted flowers. The music was excellent by the choir and a quartette of two ladies and two gentlemen. Rev. H. M. du Bose, the pastor, delivered an eloquent Easter sermon.

The heart was suspended above a bed of calla lilies. There were roses and choice flowers about the pulpit. The music was very fine, being rendered by Mrs. Mamie Perry-Davis, soprano; Fanny Lockhart, alto; H. S. Austin, basso, and E. Lotz, tenor. The selections were Burnap's Te Deum, Mozart's Easter Anthem, the Gloria by Morse, and Santa Maria solo by Mrs. Davis. Rev. J. L. Russell, the pastor, delivered a very dne Easter sermon. At the East Los Angeles Congrega-tional Church.

The East Los Angeles Congregational Sunday school, D. Gilbert Dexter superintendent, inaugurated a new plan to memorialize Easter Sunday. The people, both young and old, were requested to bring floral offerings to the altar at 9 a.m. Sunday, and they the altar at 9 a.m. Sunday, and they responded on all sides, giving one of the finest and most appropriate floral decorations ever seen in a church on any occasion. Words can hardly express the beauty of the church interior arranged with the floral decorations by the ha nds of a skilled committee. It was an Easter tribute worth going miles to see. An Eastern gentleman present declared that such a decoration East twould have cost not less than $1500.

Magnificent, impressive and solemn were the Easter services at St. Viblana Cathedral yesterday. Almost 2000 persons were present to commemorate the resurrection of the Lord. The altar and candelabra were decorated with the beautiful calla lily and soulful ascension rose. A large cross composed of the last mentioned flower with the inscription I. H. S. in carnations was placed in the rear of the altar. Children were there en masse, and if their dress did not signify that they were celebrating Easter, their red, blue and green stained hands did. The services began promptly at 10 o'clock, when the large organ began to peal forth in tones of thunder the introduction to the grand prayer solo, "SalveMaria," from the opera of Lombardi, which was sung by M.ss Marchette. Then followed the Introit (Gregorian), after which the Pontifical mass was celebrated. Celebrant R. R. Bishop Mora was assisted by Bishops O Conner and Mahoney, Assistant Priest Rev. Adams, Deacon M. Liebana. Subdeacon J. Allen, Deacons of Honor Rev. P. Gavan and Rev. P. G. Grogan, Master of Ceremonies H. Eummelen. The music was by Gilmano. arranged for orchestra, organ, full chorus and quartette. In a long white satin robe, heavily embroidered in gold with sign of office, Bishop Mora pronounced the benediction and with the assistants apread the fragrant spices in front of the altar, the congregation kneeling with bowed heads during this part of the service. The rest of the programme consisted of the offertory, the music being Lambllotte's "Regino Coeli" and an aria finale, "Modi ah Modi," from the opera of Lucrecia Borgia. Miss Marchetti sang this in a very high and sweet voice. Rev. Fr. Dockery, C. M., delivered the sermon, which was short, but inspiring. The text was: "This is the day which the Lord has made."

"In the uame of our beloved bishop, I wish you all a happy Easter," and the reverend father. "Haye you not recognized that the sufferings of this world are borne by the good, and do you not know they that the Christian soul is heritance? What blessings are there for us to contemplate at such a statement. Our Lord Jesus has arisen. Rejoice I say, again rejoice, this is the day the Lord hath made. Trust your faith in Him and He will bring you to eternal life. Pressed to the bosom of the holy mother church, He whispered into her ear: 'We have nothing to fear; we are safe.' Bear in mind, my brethren, there is no salvation outside of the Catholic Church. Jesus was its founder and protector. He is the divinity of the divine Lord. If His body when laid in the grave was taken out by ungodly hands, then our religion is a failure, but Jesus prophesied He would return in three days, and He did. We firmly believe Christ is acisen, and faith is vain without it. The greatest miracle one can perform is to raise one to life, but greater still is one that can raise himself to life. His resurrection is the proof that He is a God. Vast numbers of people followed Him to life, and He said: 'Destroy the temple-speaking of his humanity, and I will rebuild it.' If we are confident in our faith in the true church, it you wish to save your souls, you have to work, work earnestly all your life long, and unless you shall do something to merit salvation then salvation will never be yours. Cast one glance on your Savior on Calvary, on the mount, and sin if you dare. Trust in God, His son and the church, and this, dear brethren, is the blessing I wish you all.''

A solo on the organ by A. G. Gardner finished the morning's portion of yesterday's services.

At the Church of Our Lady.
The Church of Our Lady of Los Angeles, on Main street, opposite the Piaza, was crowded to overflowing.

Angeles, on Main street, opposite the Plaza, was crowded to overflowing. During the last three days almost two thousand people have been attending this old house of worship daily. The front altar and those on each side were covered with a profusion of flowers. The celebrant of high mass was Rev. Father Ginier; deacon, Rev. J. Caballero; subdeacon, Rev. J. Farrelly; master of ceremonies, Rev. Father Peter Verdiguer.

The Rev. J. Caballeri, who delivered the sermon, was ordained about a month ago at the Cathedral. He came from Burcelona, Spain, about a year ago and speaks the English language fairly well. This was his first sermon. But a brief account of it can be given as the reverend gentleman spoke in Spanish. The text was from St. Paul: "He is Resurrected."

There is a difference in the sepulchers of men and that of our Savior, said he. For instance: Here lies the body, and in three days He has arisen. From a résumé of the text we have a sign of divinity. He was claimed to be the Son of God by His resurrection and not by the miracles that he accomplished. The sepulcher of man is nothing but a monument of marble or granite, that of Christ. "He has arisen," the difference of which is the glory of His resurrection, which proves the divinity of our Lord. The foundation of our religion comes from this, for Christ, by the mystery of His resurrection, gave motion of faith, hope and charity in order that we may also rise from sin."

Many Others.

Special mention has been made of the churches which had the most elaborate decorations, but it would be an endless task to enumerate the beau tiful floral tributes in all the churches in the city, and the pastoral eloquence inspired by the anniversary.

FRANK TOAL

The Bloody Wretch Captured—He Wants to Go to San Quentin. Frank Toal, who so brutally assaulted his wife at their residence on Temple street Saturday afternoon, was captured at the saloon on his roperty on Requena street yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock by Officer Frank Steele. Steele spotted his man as he went into the saloon, and held him there. He then telephoned the police station, when the patrol wagon was sent down, with Sergeant Fletcher and Conductor Rowan in charge. Toal made no resistance. He was sitting at a table in a room in the saloon, and at a table in a room in the saloon, and when the officers went in merely remarked that they had him, and came with them. At the station he said that he wanted to go to San Quentin, and hoped they would send him up there, as he had never been happy in this place any way. As he handed over his knife he said that that was the knife with which the cutting was done. Toal was under the influence of liquor when arrested, but was not what would be called drunk.

The officers were looking for him all during Saturday night and yesterday, but he managed to give them the slip. Late Saturday night and yesterday, to the station that Toal had been seen heading toward the Coldwater Caffon, to the station that Toal had been seen heading toward the Coldwater Cañon, and as he generally found refuge with an old friend at that place when he got into trouble, it was thought he had gone there. Officers Russell and Bowler went up the cañon in a buggy about fourteen miles, but he was not there. Yesterday afternoon word came in that he was seen out on the Aliso road, and a couple of mounted men were sent out after him, but he had disappeared before they arrived. It is supposed that he has been hanging about his place on Temple street since the cutting, and only ventured out late in the afternoon.

SOME COURT DECISIONS OF FAR-REACHING EFFECT.

Sharp Criticism by a Los Angeles bawyer - Decisions That Will Make People "Poor, Hungry and Cold," and "Create Anarchists and Socialists."

The Spring Valley Water Company of San Francisco has brought a suit against the Board of Supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco to perpetually enjoin that body from putting into effect an ordinance fixing water rates. This suit is grounded upon the provisions of the State and upon the provisions of the State and United States Constitutions that no person shall be deprived of property without "due process of law," which means law in its regular course of justice, and which is considered as equivalent to saying that property can only be taken by making compensation for it.

This suit of the water company is in all respects similar to a suit recently brought and decided in the United States Circuit Court in Iowa and another in Minnesota, in which certain railroad companies brought suit to perpetually enjoin the State Railroad Commissioners from putting into force their schedula of tariffa within Commissioners from putting into force their schedule of tariffs within the State.

In the Iowa case Judge Brewer, the presiding judge of that circuit, decided that the schedule of rates would be unconstitutional, and would be depriving the railroad companies of property without "due process of law." unless the rates were high enough to pay (1) operating expenses and repairs, which included salaries; (2) interest on bonds issued; (3) a dividend on stocks.

Such cases as these are of immense

(2) interest on bonds issued; (3) a dividend on stocks.

Such cases as these are of immense importance to the public, and go to the very foundation of government, for if all the corporations in this country make similar claims and maintain them, it would seem that a vast number of institutions have been spawned upon the country, over which neither the National or the State Government has any control, which are independent of and stronger than our Government, and which have, in effect, usurped functions which appertain to sovereignty.

The cases decided by Judge Brewer hold that salaries, operating expenses, repairs, interest on bonds and dividends on stocks must be paid, but fail to distinguish between such nominal capital and the actual cost of the road or money actually invested. If I have a farm which is actually worth $1000 and no more, and I mortgage or bond it for $1000, then my equity which represents the stock, has no actual value; but if I mortgage it for $2000, then the mortgage or bonds are actually worth only 50 cents on the dollar, and my equity or stock has no value.

So with the railroads. The actual satually worth only 50 cents on the dollar, and my equity or stock has no value.

So with the railroads. The actual cost of right of way, grading, ties, iron and equipments of most of the Iowa roads did not exceed $10,000 per mile. They are usually bonded or mortgaged for $50,000 per mile. 6 per cent. interest, and are stocked at $50,000 per mile, making a nominal capital of $60,000, with an actual cost of $10,000 per mile, making a nominal capital of $60,000, with an actual cost of $10,000 per mile, or six dollar; to one, which is 6 per cent. on six dollar; equal to 36 per cent. on every dollar actually expended in constructing the roads.

It is a matter of notoriety and common knowledge of which every court may take judicial notice, that there is a vast difference between the market value of stocks and bonds and the actual value of the road based upon its cost or what it could now be duplicated for. This very learned Judge decides that because a railroad company has robbed a community for 20 years, that such robbery has become legalized and cannot be prevented, and that wherever a railroad company has invested one dollar that it must exact revenue upon and take out six dollars or it will be deprived of property without "due process of law." Such a rate of interest would double the principal in three years and would soon absorb the entire wealth of the country.

Second—The boards or commissioners established by law to investigate and determine reasonable maximum rates for transportation, for water, for railroad rights of way, and in all condemnation proceedings, are judicial tribunals, and act upon evidence. In demnation proceedings, are judicial tribunals, and act upon evidence. In fixing reasonable rates and prohibiting extortion they prevent the corpora-tions from depriving the public of property without "due process of law."

They judicially determine what is a reasonable charge or price, and such determination is binding until set aside or reversed in a manner authorized by law. The Judge who presides over the tribunal called the United States Circuit Court also acts judicially in some matters, but his tribunal is established by the same kind of law that establishes the tribunals called boards of commissioners. Both tribunals act judicially within their several spheres, and it is a usurpation for one to assume the powers and duties of the other and deny to it the right to exercise these powers authorized. Is the intelligence with which the Iowa Judge is endowed different in kind or only in degree, that he can determine better than the tribunal called commissioners what is a reasonable rate? Even where a tribunal has jurisdiction to review the lawful judgment of another, it can do so only on appeal or writ of error. Where railroad companies condemn private property for right of way and depot grounds, or where the State condemns such property, the reasonable value is determined by commissioners appointed for that purpose, and such laws have always been upheld, and no Court has ever assumed to say, in a collateral proceeding, whether the price fixed was reasonable or not, nor has any Court usurped the functions of such commissioners.

Third—The Supreme Court of the United States have always sustained the constitutionality of laws as being a proper exercise of "police powers" in the following cases, in fixing maximum charges of wharfage, drayage, carriage hires, charges of, ferries, wagon roads and toll roads, and the sale of wine, beer and liquors. In the Iowa brewery cases in the United States Supreme Court, it was held to be constitutional to entirely prohibit the business of brewers so as to render their property valueless.

The exercise of similar powers has been upheld in other cases too numerous to nention.

The learned Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Iowa seems to think the matter of hauling freight from place to pl

"DUE PROCESS OF LAW." drays and carriages are proper subjects for "police regulation," that jects for "police regulation," that railroads are not.

If Judge Brewer's decisions are to be law, it will not be many years till most of the people in the United States will be so poor, hungry and cold that they will be indifferent to the form of government they live under. It is such decisions as these which create Anarchists, Socialists and illegal organizations, which seek to destroy our free institutions.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Regular War on the Irregulars.

Los Angeles, April 20.—[To the Editor of The Times.] In a recent issue of your paper I noticed an article which stated that the regular physicians of this city were about to insticians of this city were about to instigate proceedings with a view to suppressing 113 irregular, unlicensed practitioners of medicine in this community. Now why should the expense and work of, such prosecution be borne only by the regular, respectable physicians? As a rule, medical men are poorly paid for their services. It is expected of them that they give at least one-half of their time to charitable work—and the payment of their bills is always deferred until every other obligation is settled. What is, or should be, of more interest to the public—what of more vital importance then that the man to whom they intrust their health, happiness, nay, tives, should he be an honest, competent, practitioner of the art he pretends to practice, and that such is the case is shown by the enactments of very efficient laws by our legislature, regulating most satisfactorily the practice of medicine; but there is no one to inform them. gate proceedings with a view to sup-tice of medicine; but there is no one to inform them.

The officers of the law and the public sit calmly by and allow 113 charlatans to practice upon the credulity and confidence of our people. The sick man, looking for somebody, or anybody, who will promise him hope and healing, is easily gulled and duped by the cancer quack, consumption cure, blood doctor, electrician, etc., etc.

Heretofore, if anything has been done, the respectable physicians of all schools, homeopathists and regulars, have combined and fought this common evil, not so much because they were injured financially (for most of the patients, if they survive the quack treatment, come back to some regular), but from a higher motive—to rid an honorable profession of the odlum of sheltering such blights upon the community. And even in this good work the cry of "jealousy" has been raised against us by the adherents of these bloodsuckers.

In San Francisco the two county against us by the adherents of these bloodsuckers.

In San Francisco the two county medical societies (regular and homeopathic) have both expended thousands of dollars in this work, and to a good purpose. But, as I asked before, why shall the physicians stand the expense alone, when the public is a much more interested party?

The laws of the State upon the subject are clear and explicit. They require any person wishing the privilege of practicing medicine or surgery to hold a diploma from some reputable medical college. Such diploma must be presented to the State Board of Medical Examiners for inspection. If they discover fraud or find the medical college which issued it not up to the standard of excellence required, they can reject it. If they are satisfied that the holder is in all respects, as to knowledge, ability, etc., eligible, they issue to him a license to practice in this State, which license the doctor must record with the County Clerk in whatever county he locates to practice, Now, it seems to me that there should be proper officers to see that no physician does practice in any community unless he does so register his diploma with the County Clerk.

When a man peddles tins, fruit, or sells jewelry on some street corner, the fact as to whether he has a license is soon investigated by an officer of the law. But 113 unlicensed practitioners of medicine can do business in the city of Los Angeles unmolested—113 charlatans, cancer quacks, electricians, mind-cure fakirs, etc.—are gulling, duping, extorting money under false pretenses of ability to cure, and no one to enforce the law, unless the regular, respectable physicians put their hands into their pockets and raise funds to protect the public at large. The responsibility rests somewhere.

There is many a case of death, many an instance of malpractice (for with

There is many a case of death, many an instance of malpractice (for with 113 irregular practitioners they must occur daily) where a person is made miserable for life, to be laid at some-body's door. Where does it belong?

Mr. Octavius L. Pruden is officially known as the assistant private secretary to the President, but from the nature of his duties his more popular title is President's messenger. Pruden is a holdover. He came to Washington from Glens Falls, N. Y., at the beginning of Grant's first Administration, to take the office, which he has held ever since. As a matter of fact, though, Mr. Pruden's trotting is usually done by two fine horses, driven by an elegant colored man in livery. From a platform 900 feet high midgets are raising a beacon that will give light to three millions of people. The ower Eiffel is now the one landmark of Paris, and the view from its third platform will be mountainous in its each, while the electric light will shine from a further elevation of eighty odd feet. As the exposition is given to celebrate the first century of the Republic of France by an exhibit of the progress of free labor in that period, no more fitting cap to the work could be found than this structure. which marks the reign of iron as a which marks the reign of iron as a building material.

More useful is the parallel to this great work, Machinery Hall (La Gallerie des Machines), at the other end of the Champs de Mars. It is an aggregation of iron arches into an immense shell of iron and glass, 1367 feet long, 157 feet high. The arches terminate in wedges which rest upon the foundation and move under the expansion and contraction of the iron frame of the building. The sole beauty of the tower when viewed from the grounds is found in its four arches on which it rests. The hall is the one impressive feature of the exposition; neither work could have been accomplished in any other country. The very magnitude of the undertakings appealed to the imagination of the French.

The exhibits will be on the grounds early in April. All commissioners are busy receiving the boxes now and getting them in place. To accommodate the 43,000 exhibitors there were assigned the old exposition building, the Trocadero and its grounds reaching to the Bridge of Jens (Pont d' Lena), the entire Champs de Mars; the bank of the Seine to the Pont des Invalides and the wide Esplanade des Invalides and the wide Esplanade des Invalides Steamers run along the Seine, stopping at the bridges; a little narrowgauge railway will connect the two fields, and foot bridges cross the streets between the grounds occupied, so a visitor can go the rounds, on one admission fee, of the entire 175 acres covered.

so a visitor can go the rounds, on one admission fee, of the entire 175 acres covered.

The character of the exhibition is indicated by the groups into which the exhibits are put: art, education, necessaries, appliances, furniture, dress fabrics, mining industries, mechanics' tools, alimentary products, agriculture and horticulture.

Though essentially industrial the exposition will show the genius of the French for art and historical work. Everywhere is seen the superb sense of the beautiful, and the appreciation of the nude, withal. The pavilion of the press is a revelation to the dull workers in dingy writing shops. The main port of entry, the glided domes, the fountain beautiful—everywhere are incarnations of perfect forms.

France gives a credit of $8,000,000; a business association loans without interest, and, if required, guarantees a part and business interest, and people have liberally responded. Many other countries aid their exhibitors, and the peace of Europe and the ministry of France are rendered secure for the term of the exposition, which opens on the first Sunday of May.

A portly man of middle age complained loudly when he was cautioned by the cigar dealer to light his cigar well or he would spoil it.

"That's all nonsense," he said. "If you let your cigar go out and then lay it aside for a short time you will find that the flavor is vastly improved when you relight it. If you don't believe it just try it, and you will never make the mistake again of selling a man a poor cigar and then advising him to light it well." The writer tried this scheme, and discovered that the portly man was right. He noticed that what is vulgarly called a "snipe" always smokes better and has a purer taste of tobacco than a new cigar. taste of tobacco than a new cigar.

MIGHT we be so bold as once more to call the attention of the City Council to the fact that a little more expedition in the paving of East First street would be a not unreasonable concession to the urgent demands of the unfortunate residents on that much misused thoroughfare?

THE New York World of the 14th inst. has a number of paid "write-ups" of Southern California, with illustrations, among which is a view of the "city" of Cahuenga, and of the "Grand Palace" Hotel, Main and Tenth streets. Such articles as these do harm to a section, rather than good. The truth is good enough for Southern California.

THE seven Councilmen who voted o remove Maj. Furrey have vouchsafed no reply to the plain, straightforward charges made by that gentleman against them. We, in common with other respectable Los Angeles citizens, are therefore reluctantly compelled to believe that the charges made by Maj. Furrey against the seven Councilmen in question are well

THE liquidator of the Panama Canal has unsuccessfully attempted to borrow three million dollars in London in order to make a survey of the works In consequence of this, it is expected that the valuable machinery along the route of the canal will now be abandoned to rust and ruin. The Panama Canal scheme is certainly one of the most stupendous failures which history

Hon. STEPHEN M. WHITE, an interview with whom was published in yesterday's issue, informs THE TIMES was in error when it reported him as expressing the opinion that the county division act is invalid. Mr. White says he has lately heard certain legal objections urged to the measure, but he has not investigated the points raised sufficiently to arrive at a conclusion. There was evidently a misunderstanding on the part of the reporter as to the meaning of Mr. White's answer to the question put to

THE Congress of American Nations, to be held in Washington during the present year, may result most bene ficially to the republics of the western hemisphere. The United States have ing issued the invitations for this congress, it is incumbent upon us to use every effort to make it a thorough success. We must not claim more than we are entitled to. On the contrary, we must be willing to concede perhaps a little more than is their due to the weaker powers who will be repre-These countries are very sented. "touchy" about their dignity, and are inclined to be a trifle jealous of their powerful northern neighbor. Let us disarm their suspicions at the outset and prove to them what is the truththat it is a mutually advantageous commercial intercourse which we aim at. The Pacific Coast is especially interested in the coming congress.

THE State Board of Trade has addressed a petition to the Supervisors of this county, asking that the thousand dollars which boards of super visors may appropriate for the purpose of advertising the resources of county should be given to the local Board of Trade, as a body affiliated with the State board, which, it is claimed with much show of reason, has done much for the interests of the State at large. The idea of giving the sum in question to one of our lo trade organizations is one which the Supervisors will undoubtedly con As to affiliation with the State oard, in advertising this section, we ust confess that we do not regard y such scheme with much enthusim. THE OKLAHOMA RUSH AND ITS

Whatever the result of the Oklahoma boom may be to a majority of those who go to settle there, it will as suredly stimulate the trade of those cities from which the supplies for the settlers will be drawn. Here is a re-settlers will be drawn. Here is a recent Kansas City dispatch:

In this region nothing is heard but Oklahoma. In the freight yards, crowded on the tracks and under moving orders, are about thirty huge trains, freighted with the anticipated necessities of the coming community. There are houses in sections ready to be bolted together and entered for habitation within sixty minutes after their delivery. There are completed stocks of every concelvable sort of merchandise, and with each carload of stock is packed nway the building required to harbor it. In this manner drug stores, dry goods stores, boot and shoe stores, saloons and groceries, are drawn up in readiness to be launched forward upon the favored center. It is said in the railway offices here that 1000 carloads of supplies for Oklahoma have already been sent forward and are waiting the onset at Arkansas City on the border.

Today is the long looked-for day upon which the promised land is thrown open to the anxious thousands of home-seekers. There will, of course, be a great rush; there will undoubtedly be some clash of interests: some bloodshed-there already has been some-but we have every confidence that the solid good sense and law-abiding instincts of Americans will prevent any serious trouble.

When it comes to a consideration of what the settlers will achieve, we fear the result will not be so satisfactory as many of the sanguine immigrant imagine. In a private letter, received in Washington from Lieut. Carson of the Fifth United States Cavalry, who has for years been thoroughly acquainted with the Oklahoma country are given some interesting impres sions of that region.

The country has been so tremendously boomed that many people be-lieve it is a regular Garden of Eden, but the facts are quite different, according to Lieut. Carson. Says he:

cording to Lieut. Carson. Says he:

"A residence of 12 months in Oklahoma will completely dispet this illusion, destroy many carefully nursed hopes and wipe out many small fortunes, especially should settlers experience one of our cold winters, followed by a long, dry, hot summer, such as we had in 1885 and 1886. In January, 1886, the mercury sank to 12° below zero, and in July of the same year it rose to 110°. In the winter of 1885-86 we had a succession of blizzards, and after January 1st the mercury remained well below the freezing point during the winter season. We had ice eight inches thick, and at one time snow two feet deep. The summer of 1886 was hot and dry, with very little rain. All the streams except two or three were dried up, the grass was cured before it was half grown and the thermometer persistently hugged the centennial figures. The nights were cool, thus enabling us to bear the heat of the day. Scoutant parties were in Oklahoma constantly, but none of them found any climate noticeably differing from that at Reno. The winters following that of 1885-86 were less cold and more open, but the summers were very dry and hot, especially that of 1887. We had great difficulty in obtaining any vegetables from the company's gardens, and managed to do so only by hard work and constant rrigation."

The Oklahoma boom resembles—all other booms in this details.

The Oklahoma boom resembles all other booms in this, that during the preliminary stages one hears plenty about advantages, but very little about drawbacks. These latter will force themselves to the front before long and many who rush to Oklahoma will wish they had stayed at home.

One of the reflections to which this ush gives rise is that public land of desirable character is rapidly disappearing, and will soon be all gone. It is but com paratively a very few years since land fully equal to that of Oklanoma, in a better climate, could have been had in almost any desired quantity, by just going to a United States Land Office, and filing an application. The dawn of a new era is upon us, and the time is rapidly approaching when "To the West, to the West, to the land of the free" will no longer have the same ringing significance to the poor and oppressed as it had a week are proceeding with business regu-quarter of a century ago, for it will no longer be true that "the places to be produced comprise Our poorest may gather the fruits of Friend for one night. These are two of soil"-except for another. The thought is not a pleasant one to contemplate, for, when that time comes, the work of the American statesman will be much complicated. The great advantage which the United States has over European countries lies in the possession of large tracts of virgin soil open to all who are willing to labor. It is this which has acted as a safety valve to prevent explosions on the part of dissatisfied laborers in the great centers of the country. Far-sighted men have ong foreseen that the time when our fertile public lands should be all appropriated would be a critical epoch in the history of the Nation. These facts lend additional importance to the proposed irrigation of our arid re-gions, which would add several million acres of productive land to that which is available for entry, and would, in fact, open up a new Great West, as wonderful in its possibilities as that which is now dotted with great cities, where but a few short years ago the buffalo roamed fearless and

THE BIRTH OF A NEW SOUTH

There is no doubt that the days o the Solid South are fast drawing to a New projects are constantly being brought forward to break th partisan solidity of the Southern States. The latest one appears to be nore feasible and sensible than many which have been suggested. It is a cheme to bring all the Southern Prohibitionists into one party. This movement is said to have originated in Virginia, and there are conspicu-ous Democrats of that State and Ala-bama at the head of it. The St. Louis

Globe-Democrat says:

A conference of leading Southern protectionists is to be held in Chattanooga next month. There is good reason to believe that it will be well attended. Protection sentiment is steadily and rapidly growing in the Southern States, and its greatest advances have been made within the past four or five years. Relatively to population the spread of manufacturing industries in the South within the present decade has been far greater than in either the eastern or the western sections of the North. This has been accompanied by a radical change in the views of the Southern people on industrial questions. A large portion of the more modern element of the Democracy in every Southern State has been out of harmony with the party for years past on the great economic issue of the time, but old affiliations and prejudices have kept them within the partisan traces. The time for the break, though, cannot be postponed Globe-Democrat says:

much longer, and it looks now as if it would be brought about by the conference at Chattanooga. This break, of course, when it does come, will make an important acces-sion to the strength of the Republican party in every Southern State.

THE Detroit Tribune comes to the defense of Mr. Halstead, from some spiteful remarks which have been made about him. The Tribune says: made about him. The Tribune says:
The trouble is that Mr. Halstead's opponents in the Senate think he is malicious when he isn't. He says pretty hard things sometimes when his heart is as big and warm as a Dutch oven. He will rap a friend right smart one day, and the next day give him more than half of his watermeion. Mr. Halstead is a very outspoken man, but his heart is not a storehouse for malice and old grudges.

AMUSEMENTS.

Los Angeles Theater.—Every seat was occupied at the opening of Rollly & Woods engagement last night, and standing room was at a premium. This is the biggest house that has been drawn to this theater since it was built, and goes to prove that a good show will draw. The performance is of the variety kind and is full of new attractions, some of which are highly sensational. The vocalists and dancers are up to the average, and received their share of applause. Imro Fox, the comic conjurer, does some very neat tricks, but a number of his "gags" and jokes are old.

The principal attraction of the evening is the trapeze performance of the Valdis sisters. They are old-timers in the business, and are the boldest and most venturesome female performers in the world. Their double act on the revolving trapeze, which is a new invention, is very pretty and gives the sisters a chance to do some very graceful turning. The flying leap of Lizzle from the dome of the theater, a distance of 90 feet, closes the act and brings the house down. She falls on a nine net and bounds about twenty feet in the air. The show, as a whole, is the best of its kind that has visited Los Angeles in many a long day. It will be repeated tonight.

THE BOSTONIANS. - On May 6th there comes to the Grand Oper House the musical event of the ser House the musical event of the season, the celebrated "Bostonlans," formerly known as the "Boston Ideals." This operatic organization is the best in America. The company comes from Chicago to Los Angeles direct, playing here before going to San Francisco. This is a compilment to Los Angeles of which we should not be alow its showing our appreciation. The company comprises Marie Stone, Jessie Bartlett Davis, Juliette Corden, Carlotta Maconda, Josephine Bartlett, Louise Cleary and Tom Karl, W. H. McDonald, H. C. Barnabee. Edwin Hoff, Eugene Cowies, Fred Dixon, etc. The répettoire to be given here is as follows: Mignon, Dorothy, Don Pasquale, Bohemian Girl, The Musketeers, Pygmalon and Galatea, Fatinitza, Fra Dixolo. This is a most brilliant répertoire. The company carry its own orchestra and a complete chorus.

OWL CLUB.—The rehearsals by the Ow Dramatic Club for its forthcoming performances at the Los Angeles Theater next the most successful comedies on the stage today, and well within the range of the club, which comprises such names as Martin Lehman, C. A. Vogelsang, G. A. Dobinson, W. A. Seymour, W. E. Pile, Miss Mamie Short, Mrs. Wing, Miss Lyford, Miss Josie Williams, Miss Austin, Miss Julia Crawford and others. Considerable interest is being manifested in society circles. In the success of the performances, and they will doubtless be well attended.

THE SAUNTERER.

I was out upon the street the other day when I saw coming toward me the cutest little tot imaginable—a veritable duplicate of the pictures of the little ones in the old colonial days of our history. She had on a pretty white dress, over which was worn a brown coat, belted in at the walst and reaching to her feet. On her head a small, close-fitting brown cap or bonnet, from beneath which fell the flaxen curis. Her face was dimpled and sweet as a rosebud, her eyes as blue as the violets of spring, and in her chubby white hand she held a tiny sun-shade which she proudly neld between her face and the sun. It was a charming ple-ture, that of this little maiden.

I saw a small Chinese baby the other day, I saw a small Chinese baby the other day, that was crying as if it were all lungs, and its whole business in this world was to make a noise. That reminded me of some of the juvenile Celestials that we have here in our midst. There are several Christian Chinese women in Los Angeles who are married to Christian Chinamen. They have children, little boys and girls of various ages, for whose welfare they manifest an intelligent solicitude. But one of these Chinese mothers says that she dare not let her little children go out upon the streets lest they should be assailed by hoodlums, and so she is compelled to confine them to her one small room to keep them away from evil influences. Said this poor mother, rescued from the ignorance and degradation of heathenism, "I do not know how I can ever oring up my children as I ought to here. It is hard to keep them shut up in this way. We may go to the Sandwich islands just on account of our children." What a commentary is this on our Christian civilization.

The Saunterer was thinking the other day at the Pavilion of the watchful attention given at the East to a single calla bud, and how, when it blossoming was hailed by the whole neighborhood. A single calla was a treasure beyond price. What a contrast this meager bloom to the wealth of callas displayed at the Flower Festival, where, to the end and front of the stage, the broad columns of these flowers upon their background of paims, rise at least twenty feet tall, filled with hundreds of these perfect blossoms. How true it is that this land of the sun is the land of bloom and fragrance and of undying beauty!

"The result of the closing months of last year, with the present outlook for the current year, would not justify your directors in resuming the payment of dividends. During the last year, owing mainly to deficient crops in Kansas and Nebraska, which reversely affected all roads operating in those States, the surplus revenue of Union Pacific proper (1789.01 miles) fell below the average, and amounted to $2,510,-814, as compared with $2,599,507 for the year immediately preceding. This equalled 4.12 per cent. on the company's stock. During the year, however, the company was 'trom' time to time called upon to advance money to meet deficiencies inquired on account of leases and inability of certain auxiliary lines in which it owned proprietary interests to meet their fixed charges. The Sudden Disappearance of a Japanese Woman. Last night about 11 o'clock there was considerable excitement on Sepulyeda street over the mysterious disappearance of one of the inmates of a Japanese house of prostitution on that thoroughfare. For the past two or three days the woman has been complaining of being sick, and yesterday the Japanese doctor was called in, who gave her some medicine which seemed to make her crazy. Last night she made her escape from the house through the window, clad only in her night clothes. The woman has been talking of going back to Japan, and it is said that she had saved up some $400 or $500 for this purpose, which money she took with her. Officer McGurn was notified of her disappearance and spant several hours looking for her, but up to a late hour no trace had been discovered. Some of those in the neighborhood seem to think that the woman had her clothes concealed outside, and that her sickness was merely a ruse to get away from the house and thus make her as apanese house of prostitution on ness was merely a ruse to get away from the house, and thus make her es-cape from her owners.

Mr. Blaine's Pallid Face.

[From a Washington Letter.]

Secretary Blaine came late from some dinner party and made his way down the rooms through groups of handshakers. He is, if possible, whiter than ever—show-white hair and a pure marble-white, perfectly colorless skin, making him a contrast with all the sallow-faced or ruddy people in the rooms. His remarkably quick black eyes animate the face in a way to rout all theories of invalidism, but the Secretary seems absorbed and lost in mental worries. Whenever he is seen driving from his department to the White House and back, the Premier looks worried, and evidently the cares of office are hard, or he takes them hard.

CITY OF MEXICO, March, 1889 .-[Special Correspondence of THE TIMES.]
From the belfries of the cathedral a magnificent view is to be had of the entire valley of Mexico. Away to the east the snow-capped summits of Popocatapetl and Ixtocijuatli (the White Woman) tower majestically into the regions of perpetual anow, and dwarf by comparison the lofty moun-tain ranges that encircle the valley. Between the city and the mountains a broad, silvery streak, shimmering in the sunlight, reveals the lakes, now ar or five miles distant from the city. Miles to the southward is the mountain pass by which Cortez and his followers first entered the valley, nearly four hundred years ago. Following the circle of mountains to the westward the eye is arrested by scenes which are fraught with painful interest, alike to the Mexican and American of the present day, for first discernible through the tree tops the white walls of Chapultepec Castle glisten in the sunlight.

cernible through the tree tops the white walls of Chapultepec Castle glisten in the sunlight.

It was the favorite resort of the Montezumas, and it was there that the last of the Aztec rulers gave first audience to the conquerors of Mexico. Later on it was appropriated by Cortez for his own use, and after him in turn by the viceroys of New Spain, and then in 1847 the quietude of its walks and promenades was broken by the harsh tumult of war, when the Americans made a gallant charge upon the castle and captured it. Again in the quiet possession of the Mexicans, it plays the rôle of a Presidential mansion, in conjunction with a naval school and fort. The only remaining evidence of the turbulent times of 1847 is embodied in a marble shaft—in a green field away to the north—erected to the memory of the gallant American soldier who fell in the sanguinary battle of Churubusco. Still further to the north, and upon a little prominence in the foothills, stands the chapel of Guadalupe, the holest shrine in Mexico. In the barracks the treaty of peace between the United States and Mexico was signed, at the close of 1848, and so ended the war. Nearer at hand the view presents the city itself, with its intricate network of quaint old houses, mellowed and softened by the touch of time and association, and, towering high above the housetops in every direction, one can count nearly all the domes of the 125 churches within the city.

SUBURBAN PLACES.
Within short distances of the city there are many interesting suburban villages, easily reached by tramways. Among others, Guadalupe is worthy of special attention. It was there, as the legend goes, that the virgin of Guadalupe, in the year 1531, appeared to the Indian Juan Diego, and furthermore left the imprint of her divine face upon his tilma (cloak), which same may be seen even to this day, in an uncertain and mystical light, suspended upon the wall above the altar in the little chapel that marks the site of the apparation. What more conclusive evidence could a credulous and unquestioning Christian ask than a preserved tilma with the imprint of the virgin's face still upon it, and moreover, a living spring of water which is said to have suddenly sprung from the ground, at the time of the apparition. The ong others, Guadalupe is worthy of have suddenly sprung from the ground, at the time of the apparition. minded Indian in his belief of the truth of the miracle.

The priests have shamefully imposed upon the credulity of the confiding Indians, for having blessed the waters of the spring they have created about it a cloud of mystery, and have accorded it powers to effect miraculous cures for all bodily ailments. So firm is the simple Indian's belief in its virtue that like the pligrims of old, as the scriptures tell us, who traveled many weary leagues to bathe in the troubled waters of the Pool of Bethesda, just so waters of the Pool of Bethesda, just so do the sick and infirm from all parts of Mexico make long, weary pilgrimages to the spring of Guadalupe. There are, however, no recorded cures, and it is doubtful if the spring possesses even the ordinary virtues of mineral waters.

THE MEXICANS GENERALLY. There are but two clearly-defined classes in Mexico between which there is little sympathy—the extremely wealthy and the extremely poor. There is no middle or well-to-do class to speak of. The character of both is almost identical. The difference consists mainly of a refined sort of barbarism among the wealthy, as compared to the ignorant, superstitious barbarism of the humbler class. The intellectual capacity of both is about equal; the difference is that one class has been more fortunate than the other, by force of circumstances. There are in Mexico, in round numbers, about 10,000,000 of round numbers, about 10,000,000 of people. Of this number it can be said that about 3,000,000 live, while the balance of 7,000,000 little more than exist. Probably nowhere in the civilized world is the contrast between extreme wealth and abject poverty as marked among a people where the intellectual capacity of both classes is so nearly upon a par, and where the difference of the fine attributes of character and a certain innate refinement between the two classes is scarcely discernible. The best stock in Mexico of today is found in the poor, untutored Indians of the mountain, and from among them have been drawn the greatust soldiers and the ablest Presidents that Mexico has ever had. Juarez and Hidalgo (sometimes called the father of Mexico) were full-blooded Indians, and their memories live in the hearts of the Mexican of the supposed intelligent class is singularly egotistical, bigoted, and ignorant. It is a remark frequently heard among such that "there are but two cities in the world—Mexico and Paris." Nine-tenths of the people of Mexico labor under a firm conviction that Texas comprises the United States and that they could wipe the American race out of existence, and that with one hand tied behind them.

When the churches and the shrines throughout Mexico—whose bells are forever summoning a superstitious and ignorant people to pray for their spiritual welfare and guidande—are superseded by the public schools, and the same bells, mayhap, are used to proclaim to the rising generation a new e

Spanish conquest. The temporal welfare of the Mexicans has been sacrificed too much to their spiritual welfare. In other words, the beople are attempting to serve God with their stomachs empty. It is with a poignant feeling of relief that the American turns his back upon Mexico and her poverty-stricken people, and speeds away, homeward-bound to the United States. Aas crossing the Rio Grande at El Paso he espies the Stars and Stripes gaily waving in the breexe from the mast-top at the military barracks, the loyal American is thrilled with pride and patriotism, and fervently thanks God for the inalienable rights of American citizenship, as proclaimed to the nations of the world in the Declaration of our Independence.

this city about two weeks ago it was whispered about among the railroad men that Mr. McCool would shortly be removed to give place to some eastern man who is anxious to make Los Angeles his home, but since Mr. McCool's departure nothing more has been said, and it is not known whether he is sure of his position or not. A great many changes have been made in the management of the Santa Fé of late, and it is hard to tell where the thing will end.

made in the management of the Santa Fé of late, and it is hard to tell where the thing will end.

Maj. Wilkins's successor, Mr. Hynes, has arrived from the East and will take charge today. He arrived in this city last Friday, and has spent the most of his time visiting with Col. Williamson Dunn. Mr. Hynes is a thorough railroad man, and will make several important changes as soon as he understands the situation. Maj. Wilkins will go to Mexico to take charge of the freight for the Santa Fé Company in that country. He has been there before, and thoroughly understands the needs of the people.

It is about time for the big guns of the Southern Pacific Company to put in an appearance in Southern California if they intend to carry out their promises and revolutionize railroad business in this section of the country during the coming summer.

The Utah and Los Angeles managers are keeping very quiet at the present time. They have several big irons in the fire and if they succeed it will be a grand thing for Los Angeles.

L. J. Rose, 'president of the Altadena road; P. M. Green, vice-president; J. P. Woodbury, directors, and A. B. Manohan, secretary, are in San Francisco, in consultation with the Southern Pacific people and G. G. Green, the capitalist. Dr. Green says that if the Southern Pacific people do not take hold of the road he will, and he proposes to complete it to Shorb's Station, and also to the summit of the mountains. Dr. Green is amply able to carry out his promises, and the owners of the road have made up their minds to do something as soon as possible. The Southern Pacific people have given out for some time pass that they were out to do something as soon as possible.

The change in the interstate commerce law which consists in dropping the words "of at least the size of ordinary pics," in the section requiring the publication of schedules, is certainly a common sense one. It was absurd in the first place for the law to undertake to fix the size of type, no matter what the size of the schedules would be; and as a matter of fact to print the complete tariffs of any of our great railway companies in pica would require sheets about as large as a barn door. In sthell smallest type which will answer these tariffs will be in many cases excessively large and bungling, and the amendment which requires that all such schedules, "printed in large type," shall be "posted in two public and consplcuous places in every depot, station or office where passengers or freight are received" certainly seems to be unnecessarily burdensome and exacting. It is hard to see why the posting of one copy would not be amply sufficient.

It is altogether probable, however, that the incidents of the Montana affair are tame by comparison with those which marked its Colorado predecessor, which for many days occupied a most conspicuous place in the newspapers of the country and in the public mind. country and in the public mind.

FIREBUG. A Mysterious Fire in a Restaurant

Last Night.

The corner of First and Los Angeles streets was the scene of a rather mysterious fire last night, under circumstances which point very strongly toward incendiarism. About 9 o'clock Officers Rickenback and Methvin were attracted toward the spot by a strong smell of coal oil and just as they reached the corner a blaze broke out in the rear of a small restaurant known as the Yreka coffee house, which fronts on First street, one door east of Los Angeles. The officers climbed over the fence and got on the roof, which was covered over when the fire started with a piece of canvass. It was the work of but a few seconds to extinguish the blaze, and about this time Mr. Evans, the manager of the place, who rooms near by, was notified, and came over to the house. An investigation showed that a large bundle of rags had been saturated with coal oil and fired in the kitchen, while in the middle of the floor stood an empty jug which had contained coal oil, and which was generally kept behind the counter in front. Mr. Evans said that he had not been out of the house more than 10 or 15 minutes before the fire broke out, and when he left everything was in its proper place. The proprietress says the jug was half full of oil late in the afternoon, as she filled a lamp at that time, and knew how much was left. Both the proprietress and manager said that there was no insurance on the stock and fixtures of the restaurant, which were valued at only about $250. The building is a one-story affair, brick in front, with a frame addition. It is owned by Mr. Tellner, and is insured. So far there is absolutely no clew to the incendiary, who probably effected an entrance from the rear of the place, which could be very easily done. The case will probably be further investigated today, and an effort made to find the firebug.

In Chinatown.

Nothing out of the general way was to be observed in Chinatown yesterday, with the exception that the theater was perhaps more largely attended than for some time previous, and if the highbinders really intend to start a riot there are no surface indications. Several of the Chinese leaders affect to be very much afraid that there will be bloodshed before their tan troubles are adjusted, and one of them said that at least one man was certain to be killed. The men arrested for inciting to riot will probably come up for examination today, when there may be some developments. In Chinatown.

SEXTON, THE TEMPLE-STREET DRUGGIST, NON EST.

He Folds His Tent, Like the Arabs and as Quietly Steals Away Be tween Two Days-A Fast Young Man and an Injured Father.

People in the neighborhood of Tem-ple street and Belmont avenue were curious yesterday ever the mysterious movements of Charles Sexton, a drug-gist in that vicinity. He has had s drug store on the north side of the street, at the corner mentioned, for about a year and a half. It has been predicted for some time, by those who have observed Sexton's life, that he would fail in business, but it was not dreamed that he would disappear in a night and leave no traces behind him. Yet, when the neighbors woke up yes terday morning, what had been Sexton's drug store the night before up to ton's drug store the night before up to 10 o'clock was an empty storeroom.

One or two persons saw the drug stock being loaded on wagons, and in response to inquiries Sexton informed them that the men who were taking it away had bought the stock. This was a very thin excuse for a rascally piece of business.

The truth is that Sexton is

The truth is that Sexton is financially involved by a reckless neglect of business and fast living, and took this way of escaping his creditors. He was started in business by his father, who took a secured lease on the store. Sexton did pretty well for a time, but soon became reckless and dissipated. He left the store in charge of a boy, and seemed to have little other idea than to have a good time without much regard to the consequences. The inevitable result followed. His patrons would not trust a man to fill prescriptions who was The truth is that Sexton man to fill prescriptions who was oftener drunk than sober, and Ben L. Baer started a well-kept drug store on the opposite side of the street, which soon took the custom away from him.

Baer started a well-kept drug store on the opposite side of the street, which soon took the custom away from him. Sexton did not seem to care, but kept on the even tenor of his dissolute way. He became interested in a young lady, the daughter of a well-known prohibition citizen, who lives farther out Temple street, and has been engaged to her for some time. So enamored did she become of her knight of the mortar and pestle that she made frequent visits to the drug store. The neighbors say that she was there frequently, and that the wooling and philandering of the lovers was patent to the most unobservant. The marriage of the couple was announced several times, but it did not really come off. When the young lady visited the druggist she usually went to a back room, where the two billed and cooed in the most approved fashion. The midnight revels of her sweetheart she knew nothing about. When mysteriously veiled females whisked in at the side door late at night, their entrances and exits were effected without much notice. They were sufficiently observed, however, to cause the neighbors to shake their heads and predict the speedy ruin of that wicked youngman."

It seems, from all accounts, that Sexton had a pretty good time. But he found it more difficult to pay for his whistle as the months rolled around. His stock he valued at $1800. He went into debt. Several merchants about the city were wondering, yesterday, what had become of him; among them Messrs. Bauer & Newbauer, the wholesale to bacco dealers on North Main street, whom he has left in the lurch for quite a nice sum. Several drug irms and confectionery establishments are also moturning the disappearance. He left no trace by which he could be located. The poople in the neighborhood do not know, and while they have surmises, Sexton has concealed his movements so well that the surmises amount to nothing. Some paying.

The flight was carefully planned and Saturday night chosen for the removal of the goods, in order that Sunday might elapse before the drug stock could be hunted up and attached.

An Important Matter.
Among the matters which will prob ably come up before the Council today, and be disposed of, is the Davies-street railroad franchise, which has been hanging fire for some months past. The old Council put it off on one pretext and another, although the applicants had complied with all the legal requirements, and it was pending when they went out of power. The last point made was that there was a legal question between the Davies people and the Vernon Railroad Company, and it was put off, so it was said, until the courts could settle the questions in dispute. The question came up before the Council at its last meeting, when a committee was appointed to investigate the case. This has been done, and it will probably come up for final action today. railroad franchise, which has been

PASADENA NEWS.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT CANNERY MEETING.

New Articles of Incorporation From Lower California-An Incipient Bonanza King-Among the Churches-Beautiful Flow ers. Etc.

PASADENA, April 21.—[Correspondence of The Times.] Yesterday afternoon some two score of Pasadena's leading citizens met again in the rooms of the Board of Trade to hear the report of the committee appointed at a former meeting and to still further consider the important proposition of establishing a cannery in Pasadena.

As W. W. Webster, who had offici-ated in the capacity of chairman at a previous meeting, was absent, Prof. C. E. Tebbetts was called to the chair.

The first thing in the order of business was the reading of the report of the Committee on Amended Articles of Incorporation by M. Ferdham, secretary. The report was signed by H. W. Magee, chairman of the committee. The extreme importance of placing a considerable portion of the stock was urgently presented in the committee's report as being absolutely essential to the life and future success of the cor-on motion the report and the amended articles of incorporation were adopted as read.

W. U. Masters then suggested that it might be advisable to change the corporate name of the company, "Pasadena Fruit Company," as there was already a concern in the city doing business under the style of the "Pasadena Fruit Company," referring to F. H. Barnes & Co., fruit dealers.

M. Wallace favored the change, adding that the name was not suggestive enough. The name under which his own establishment was conducted be-own establishment was conducted being the "Pasadena Packing Company," which name Mr. Wallace declared himself willing to relinquish to the new concern for a consideration.

The cooperative feature of the en-terprise here came up for discussion again and Chairman Tebbetts explain-ed that the company would be, under the amended articles of incorporation, either a joint-stock concern or a cooperative affair in the discretion of the Board of Directory. After some further discussion con-

After some further discussion concerning a name, it was determined to issue certificates of subscription headed, "this incorporation to be known by such name as may hereafter be determined upon." Carried. C. C. Thompson was strongly in favor of a joint-stock company, conducted for the profit there was in it to the stockholders. His idea seemed

Mr. Kernaghan remarked that in amending the articles of incorpora-tion it had been the idea of the com-mittee to make it either cooperative or not, in the discretion of the manage-

The report of the Stock Subscription Committee being called for, Mr. Kernaghan replied that about 100 shares had been taken, but that since the discussion at the former meeting, at which the question of coöperation or joint stock was raised, no subscriptions had been solicited.

Attention was called by Mr. Mass.

or joint stock was raised, no subscriptions had been solicited.

Attention was called by Mr. Masters to that portion of the committee's letter suggesting the expediency of increasing the number of committeemen on the subscription business.

On motion, the gentlemen of the committee, five in number, were empowered to select five additional committeemen to aid in the work of soliciting stock subscriptions.

C. C. Thompson was of the opinion that if the people of Pasadena and vicinity had any idea of the importance of the business in hand, and of what a vast benefit it would prove to the entire community, there would be little difficulty in securing stock-holders.

Mr. Kernsghap, wered that gmell

Mr. Kernagnan urged that small fruit-growers be urged to take stock in the company, as they were the very ones who would derive the greatest benefit from it. He remarked: "It needs little argument. Their fruit has rotted by the ton in former years, and it will rot during this and succeeding years if something is not done to take care of it."

C. C. Thompson gave some interesting figures concerning the advantage to fruit-growers of having competition, and gave as an instance the man who was offered first $25, then $28, for a certain lot of oranges on the trees. Not being satisfied he looked further, and sold them to another party for $165.

C. C. Brown expressed himself in the most forcible terms that a fruit-packing establishment would prove the salvation of Pasadena. He wound up by donating $50 outright to the

L. H. Michener, who came in late, bere remarked that he had but little to here remarked that he had but little to say, but that little was, that a cooperative company would prove a disastrous failure, and that the only sensible way to conduct the business would be as a joint-stock company, and added that in his opinion there should be a discrimination between the stockholders and the outsider, in favor of the former.

Adjournment was then taken to Wednesday afternoon at 8 o'clock.

BAJA CALIFORNIA. W. O. Bellaire returned from the new gold fields at Alamo, Lower California. The gentleman looked like the President of Mexico, in a broad-brimmed sombrero, which ran up to a point like a steeple on a "meeting house," and was weighted down with embroidery and filagree of silver and embroidery and filagree of silver and gold.

Mr. Bellaire left Pasadena in the height of the rush and had no sooner arrived in the new El Dorado than he discovered a gold-bearing quartz lead, denounced a rich placer claim and became postmaster, leading merchant, proprietor of a newspaper, the Santa Clara Mining News, and in fact was a big man before, but he weighs more now. His pockets are lined with golden slugs (a fact) and on his back, in a sack, he packed part of a ton of quartz, in every piece of which the yellow virgin gold could be plainly seen. Well, Mr. Bellaire cast his lot in unpleasant places and is deserving of every success. He will, no doubt, be counted ere long among the bonanza kings of the Pacific Coast.

"Where is your home?" I asked.

"H'nt got no house," he said, as he kicked one of the dogs and took a chew of tobacco.

"Whered' I live!" he exclaimed, indignantly. "I don't have to live anywhere. I'm marchin' ahead of civ'lization, sir. I'm homesteadin."

"Well, where do you sleep?"

"Sleep? I sleep over on the Government land, drink out of the North Platte, eat jack rabbits and raw wolf. But it's gettin' too thickly settled 'round here for me. I saw a land agent from Buffalo Gap today, and they say a whole family is comin' up the North Platte, 50 miles below here. It's getting too crowded for me here, stranger. Honest Citizens Waylaid and Murdered and Boldly Shot Down in Their Own Homes - Objectionable Strangers Made Way With -Newspaper Men Marked for Vengeance-Recent Bloody Out-

[New York Werld, April 14.]

RATON (N. M.), April 5.--The need of something which can control, exterminate or humanize a certain element in New Mexico is becoming more and more apparent as one outrage after another is perpetrated. The guilty ones are seldom apprehended—not often looked for, in fact—or if accidentally taken before a grand jury, are rarely bound over. One of the most, if not the most, lawless of the counties of the Territory is Valencia, the second largest in New Mexico, the most sparsely settled of any agricultural county and the nesting-place of the boldest and most bloodthirsty set of scoundrels the sun ever shone on. Murders by the score have been committed within her border, and in no instance has the law been vindicated.

About three years are there was soore have been committed within her border, and in no instance has the law been vindicated.

About three years ago there was living in the mountain plaza of Manzano a young German by the name of Charles Kusz. He was a bold, brilliant, aggressive fellow, who knew little of the Mexican character, still less of the priestly infinence over them. Manzano is one of the remote towns of Valencia county, lying on the rim of a beautiful fertile cup that dips down into the great plain lying to the eastward. It was at that time, and still is, a Mexican town, thoroughly native in everything, and at this point Kusz started a ridiculously small and exceedingly waspish paper, to which he added the insulting—to every native—name of Gringo and Greaser. This atom of a sheet, whose type consisted wholly of italies and dealing with the morals and shortcomings of the people in the same emphatic way as it was printed, had no moral support from any of the inhabitants, Kusz being the only one of either German or American blood within many miles. Later he took in a partner, who, however, it was understood, had no hand in the editing or compiling of the sheet.

Kusz conceived the idea of becoming a reformer, and to accomplish a laudable object he adopted fatal methods. He antagonized the church without making friends among the people. Months went by and each week the Gringo and Greaser became more violent, more denunciatory, more reckless. One stormy night two Americans rode Gringo and Greaser became more vio-lent, more denunciatory, more reckless. One stormy night two Americans rode many miles over the plain to stop with the young German. In his hospitality he threw open his house and prepared to feast his friends. The supper table was spread, the loving cup had passed from hand to hand and the fun was growing fast and furious when a shot rang out above the howling of the storm and Charles Kuez fell dead at the feet of his comrades, shot from the window where the assassin had stood and taken deliberate aim at the poor boy's heart.

window where the assassin had stood and taken deliberate aim at the poor boy's heart.

In a lonely grave on the desert lie the bones of this martyr who sacrificed his life to his exalted ideas of duty, to his love for mankind. From the night that shot was fired no man has been arrested for the cowardly deed—no man will ever be.

One year ago a party of three settlers living on a ranch near one of the mountain villages incurred the enmity of the priest and of a part of the people. A junta was called and harangued by the padre, and the rancheros were ordered to leave. Being guilty of no crime, and being entirely innocent of having by word or deed done anything to offend, and feeling that the natives would eventually become aware that they were being used as a tool by the priest, they failed to realize their danger. One of these settlers was a woman, and for days she was alone in the midst of her enemies, knowing that her life had been threatened and that there was no one to protect her. She could not leave, for 75 miles of mountain lay between her and the settlements. When at last the others returned—the notice was served upon the woman when the and the settlements. When at last the others returned—the notice was miles or mountain lay between her and the settlements. When at last the others returned—the notice was served upon the woman when the men of the household were absent—she was on the verge of insanity from sleepless vigils and days of terror.

They left their ranch house and went down into the village, hoping to placate the people if once they could see some one of the old men of the respectable portion of the plaza. No sooner had they left their cabin than it, with everything in the way of improvements, was burned. There was no redress; nothing to do but leave or to boldly defy their enemies and go back, and among the charred ruins build up a new home. This they did, and their calm courage and quiet, undemonstrative persistence seemed to touch the Mexicans as no prayers or protestations sould have done, and they were allowed to live in peace with what security they might feel. The reaction set in as this little beleagured family had foreseen, and the power for good or bad was completely lost to the padre, who was shorn of his priestly office, and retired to scenes more fitting his peculiar nature.

On Nov. 6, after nightfall, Dumas Provencher, a French gentleman, who had lived in Valencia county for twenty-five years, an incorruptible man and one greatly beloved, was shot through the heart at the placita of San Rafael as he and his associates were opening the ballot boxes. He was murdered, as was Kusz, by an assassin looking through the window. In a moment Provencher threw up his hands and fell dead. Another one of the party within the judge's room, realizing that a wholesale murder of Democrats was to be committed in order to obtain possession of the ballot boxes, shot out the lamp and thus saved the lives of the remaining three. Two men were arrested for this murder but have not been tried. The general opinion is that these were paid assassins, and that the originators of the crime were among the hidalgos of Valencia county.

Charles F. Lummis, the famous correspondent of New Mexico, wrote up were among the hidalgos of Valencia county.

Charles F. Lummis, the famous correspondent of New Mexico, wrote up the last murder, and in most unmistakable language denounced by name the suspected parties. He reviewed their past lives and gave a scathing description of a long criminal career that was appalling in its criminality and recklessness. His letter sent to the Los Angeles Times was extensively copied, and soon it came to the knowledge of the leaders in Valencia county that the man they had warned to let them alone had unmasked his batteries and was ready for a fight to the death. He had previously incurred the ill-will of a number of the inhabitants of San Mateo and vicinity by writing upon and illustrating the orgies of the Penitentea, a set of fanatics practicing their hideous rites only in the most secluded and inaccessible districts. With the energy and daring characteristic of this talented fellow, he, by methods how many to bimself, succeeded in other seconds.

via crucis and the crucifixion, which, with an intensely graphic, descriptive letter, were published.

In October Lummis went to the pueblo of Isleta, and among the gentle, brown-skinned Indians pursued his labors of love, writing about the country and illustrating his articles with pictures, that are in themselves a history of New Mexico. He knew there was a price upon his head—knew that a foe more stealthy than the mountain lion was on his trail; that behind every cactus, crouching within the shadow of the sagebrush, hid in the dry grasses or in the gloom of the narrow streets, a foe was but waiting for the time to take aim to make "all things even." Knowing this, he went day by day about his business and, without any precaution beyond that of going armed, walked through the lanes of the pueblo at all hours of the night.

On St. Valentine's evening he passed an hour with his good friends, the Reas of the pueblo, and as the moon

On St. Valentine's evening he passed an hour with his good friends, the Reas of the pueblo, and as the moon was rising went to his own quarters, where he was in the habit of working till far into the morning hours. He threw aside his coat and sat down to his paper. About midnight, pushing back his sombrero, he rose from his chair, and, opening the low door of his chamber, stood out in the clear moonlight. Raising his arm high over his head he yawned, as weary men will do. There was a flash of steel in the white moonrays, a sharp crack, followed by head he yawned, as weary men will do. There was a flash of steel in the white moonrays, a sharp crack, followed by another, and the leaden shot fell thick about the startled man. He felt a tingling in his cheek, a sharp pain in his hand, but wore—he felt that he had left his own gun inside the room and the would-be murderer would escape. Turning to his rifle, unconscious that he was bleeding from a gaping hole in his face, and that shot had ploughed their way into his throat, he ran until a sudden faintness warned him that he must seek his friends or fall to be butchered by the lurking coward, who even then had stopped to look back to see if his work was well done. When Lummis reached the house of the Reas he was scarcely able to tell what had happened. Here women's tender hands washed away the blood and bound up the wounds, and then, scarce able to stand, Lummis returned to his room and, alone, lay the rest of the night on his arms, the door ajar, waiting for the murderer or his gang to return.

With morning he began to realize the extent of his injuries and to be curious to investigate how near he had been to sudden death. In his sombrero he found where one part of the charge had passed through the crown, about an inch above the rim. In the right pocket of his jacket was a book filled with papers and photographs. In these shot enough to have killed him instantly had they reached his heart were imbedded, and on the little finger of his right hand was a blood bruise where a glancing pellet had struck.

Does It Pay ? Three-fourths of our people are troubled with dyspepsia or liver complaint in some form or other, which by nature of the disease has a depressing influence on the mixed form or other, which by nature of the discase has a depressing influence on the mind stomach or any derangement of the stomach or liver (upon which the whole action of our systam depends) are speedily and

WOMAN AND HOME.

SUSAN SUNSHINE DISCUSSES THE SUBJECT OF CLOTHES.

me Valuable Hints to the Young Housekeeper-A Bold Assertion -The Injurious Effects of Skirts Suspended from the Hips-Cor-

James A. King, in "Dress," in an article upon "Woman and Her Clothes," says some very sensible things, even if he is a man who is talking about things with which he has not particularly to But he might urge, and very truthfully, too, that matters of woman's dress did concern him in so far as an improper mode of dress affected the health or physical well-being of his mother, wife, daughter or sister.

I am coming to consider the matter of "clothes" as a matter of a good deal more importance than I have hitherte regarded it, as a science which needs careful study and experiment, and one intimately affecting the health and general development of the human system. Women abuse themselves in almost every way in their dress. I speak for myself as well as others. For example, I took a look at my foot this morning before it was clothed, then I indulged in a contrasting glance at my shoe. The result was that I discovered that my foot, as I rested my weight upon it, was a good deal broader than my shoe. Really, I thought it is not wise for me to wear that shoe, to compress all the muscles of my foot, and to crowd the bones together, and cramp all the freedom of motion by putting it on. I won't do it. I'll get one with a broader sole, and one that not a nerve, or bone, or muscle, will cry out against. Well, I did so, and the result is most satisfactory. There is no pressure on the veins, no protest from the single loud-voiced corn, but there is a sense of warmth, of of comfort and of ease that is very pleasant. Yet I have always prided myself on not wearing a tight shoe, yet morning before it was clothed, then I pleasant. Yet I have always prided myself on not wearing a tight shoe, yet unconsciously I have work one which was less broad than the foot. So here is where my first step at dress reform commences, and it is an important one. But, speaking of Mr. King's contribution, I would quote a few of his truthful utterances. Referring to the corset he says:

corset he says:

"No other known creature I save woman I wears one. Its purpose is to limit the size of the waist, and its effect is to produce an awkward stiffness of the trunk in place of the natural, graceful mobility of the parts; to prevent the proper entrance of air into the lungs, and to force the abdominal viscers out of their natural position. It is enough to say that the corset works viscera out of their natural position. It is enough to say that the corset works to a charm. Properly applied it never fails to produce the effect for which it is so well adapted."

"The habit of fastening skirts about the waist probably does more harm than all else. Nature will resist a sudden force, and recover from its effects; but it gives way to a slighter force than all else. Nature was reflects; but it gives way to a slighter force steadily applied. Parts suspended by slender ligaments that readily allow of movement in all directions are easily displaced by the constant pressure of from five to twenty-rive pounds of skirts. This profusion of petticoats and constriction of the waist increases the apparent size of the hips until they stand out a perfect "immensity of ugliness."

stand out a perfect "immensity of ugliness."

The writer above quoted credits woman with hardly sense or independence enough to inaugurate the needed dress reform, but says:

"Gentlemen, this change must begin with you. Convince the American woman that her dress is the subject of ridicule; that quietly in the clubrooms, hotels, in the knots of men gathered upon the street, her costume is considered awkward and unbecoming, and the fashions would change tomorrow;
then you would pay our doctors less,
but love your homes more."

Let us test the correctness of this

Let us test the correctness of this assertion, and be bold to forsake whatever tends to the physical, no less than the moral deterioration of our sex.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS

All diseases of the respiratory organs treated by the most improved medical inbalations and the Compound Oxygen treatment, which has such a world-wide reputation in lung and nervous affections.

We take pleasure in announcing to the public that we combine the Compound Oxygen Treatment with our system of practice in the care of gathma, bronchitis, consumption, dyspepsia, insomnia, sere throat, catarrh, rheumatism and nervous prostration.

The testimonials given below are very fair samples as to the time required for effecting cures in these troublesome cases:

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov 18, 1888.

This is to certify that I had been afflicted with asthma and emphysims of the lungs for about 24 years. My disease was contracted in the army. I had tried almost every known remedy, both here and in the East, but nothing ever gave me permanent relef until I tried Dr. Williams's Compound Oxygen and other remedies. It is only about one month since I began the treatment, and already I feel like another man. I was so bad that for days I could hardly breathe, but I do positively feel that I am cured. The difficulty of broathing has been entirely removed, and I feel as well as I sver did in every respect.

So Bellevue Avenue, Los Angeles.

Los Angeles. Nov. 18, 1888.

It is a source of gratification to me to be able to testify to the very satisfactory ourself. It is a source of gratification to me to be able to testify to the very satisfactory ourself. It is a self-cited in my case with his Compound Oxygen and other inhalations. After suffering several years with catarrh of the head and throat also bronchitis, which caused a very aggravating cough, I applied to Dr. Williams, who effected an entire curse in just two months from the time I began the treatment. I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Williams as a Christian gentleman and a conscientious and skillful physician, whose curse seem almost marvelous in cases of consumption, asthma. bronchitis and catarrh.

MRS. L. A. THURSTON, 1423 Temple st., Los Angeles, Cal.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success. The very best references from those already cured.

CONSULTATION FREE. Those who desire to consult with me in regard to their cases had better call at my office for coresultation and examination, but, if impossible to do so, can write for a copy of my Medical Treatise, centaining a list of questions. Address
